BM&FBOVESPA is the 2nd Risk Management and Commodity Trading Conference which will be held in São Paulo, Brazil, on November 27th and 28th, 2012. The objective of this Conference is to bring the academic community and industry together, in order to discuss risk management and commodity trading (agricultural, energy, environmental and metal commodities), in accordance with the themes of interest suggested by the Executive Committee. In addition, the Conference format is designed so that each participant presenting their findings was given suggestions to enhance the content of their full papers. Presenters can submit their abstracts for analysis by the Executive Committee until September 2nd, 2012. After the presentations at the Conference, the authors will have until January 27th, 2013 to prepare and send in their full papers, which will then be published on the Conference official website.
