Economic Science Association North American Regional Meeting Westward Look Resort, Tucson AZ, October 30-November 1 <http://www.cirano.qc.ca/experimentaleconomics/esa/> Experimental Economics and the Real World Submissions: The focus of the conference is on the relevance of experimental economics for the real world. Submissions are welcome on any topic, but we especially encourage submission of papers and sessions on the following topics: Experimental tests of public policies Experimental input to public policy formation Experimental studies of market and non-market institutions Studies that combine field and experimental data to address a theoretical or policy issue Methodological considerations in extending experimental procedures to the field Cross-cultural studies Field experiments Studies examining heterogeneity or individual differences in decision making Studies examining the effect of framing Papers need not be experimental: submission of theoretical or empirical papers that have relevance for experimental economics are also welcome. The deadline for submitting and abstract is August 15. A program will be posted in early September. Lodging: All sessions will be held at the Westward Look Resort in the foothills of the Tucson mountains. The ESA has reserved a block of rooms for $120 per night. Instructions for making reservations are on the link below. Registration: Please follow the link on the website below to register for the conference.
