In cooperation with the National University of Economics of Vietnam, the Association for Public Economic Theory (APET) is organizing PET 06 Hanoi, to be held July 30 - August 3, 2006. This will be the 7th international APET conference. Contributed papers are solicited in all areas of public economics, including applied, empirical and theoretical research, and in related fields of economics, such as game theory, computational economics, labor and development. An important subtopic of the conference is applications to the economies of Asia and Vietnam. The conference will take place at the Melia Hotel. (Please refer to the program for more details). PET 06 Hanoi is the first meeting related to academic economics organized in Vietnam, with the participation of many economists coming from universities and scientific research centers around the world and will be an historic event. Researchers who plan to participate or tentatively plan to participate include: Robert J. Aumann (Hebrew University of Jerusalem) James Heckman (University of Chicago) Dan McFadden (University of California, Berkley)
