

Volume 28, Issue 13

Research Announcement

Further theoretical and empirical evidence on money to growth relation

Christophe Rault

LEO, University of Orléans and EDHEC Business School

Alexandru Minea

LEO, University of Orléans

Patrick Villieu

LEO, University of Orléans

Abstract

This paper proposes a theoretical growth model where seigniorage can be used to finance productive public spending, and show the existence of nonlinear effects between seigniorage and economic growth. Empirical evidence based on panel regression techniques provides some support for these nonlinear effects on a sample of OECD countries over the 1978-2005 period.

Accepted on for publication in:

Paper is available at URL:

Christophe Rault

LEO, University of Orléans and EDHEC Business School

chrault@hotmail.com

Citation: Christophe Rault and Alexandru Minea and Patrick Villieu, (2008) "Further theoretical and empirical evidence on money to growth relation", Economics Bulletin, Vol. 28 no.13 p.A1.

Submitted: August 11, 2008 Published: August 19, 2008.

URL: <http://www.accessecon.com/pubs/EB/2008/Volume28/EB-08AA0020A.pdf>